FAMOUS DIPLOMAT IS FOUND DYING ON STREET

William I. Buchanan in England on Government Mission, Is Stricken Suddenly.

SERVICES NOTEWORTHY

Occupied Many Important Diplomatic Posts Won Fame by Setting Boundary Dispute.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—William I. Buchanan of Buffalo, N. Y., who has been in Europe for some time in connection with an important diplomatic mission for the state department at Washington, was found unconscious near the American embassy early today and died before medical aid arrived.

The cause of death is not known, but it is supposed that it was heart disease of apoplexy. There were no marks of violence on the body, nor had robbery been committed.

Mr. Buchanan, who had come to London on a mission for the United States in connection with Venezuela claims, had been here for several weeks. He previously had visited Berlin and Paris. He took up quarters at Claridge's hotel. He left the hotel last night for dinner. No one has been found who knows where he passed the evening, but it is supposed that he was walking home when stricken. A passerby found the diplomat lying on the sidewalk. A policeman was summoned. He called an ambulance, but it was too late for medical aid.

The name, "W. I. Buchanan," was found on the clothing. The initials were engraved on jewelry. There were no other names of identification. The police circulated these particulars and the manager of the hotel and officials of the American embassy identified the body.

A cablegram was sent to Mrs. Buchanan at Buffalo.

The American embassy and the coroner took charge of Mr. Buchanan's effects, which are supposed to include papers of great value. It is customary in such cases in England to perform an autopsy, but the American embassy has requested that this be waived.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—News of Mr. Buchanan's death came as a great shock to his many friends in official Washington. Since President Cleveland's last administration, Mr. Buchanan had, with short intermissions, been connected with the department of state in some of the most important diplomatic work that has engaged the attention of the department. The uniform success that has attended his un-

AUTOIST RISKS DEATH TO AVOID COLLISION.

Senator Hughes' Son Has Narrow Escape En Route Here From Denver.

At the risk of his life and that of his chauffeur, Lafayette Hughes, a prominent Denver club and society man, and the son of United States Senator Charles J. Hughes, turned his 45-horsepower Fairless automobile, running at the rate of 60 miles an hour, into the ditch to avoid a collision with a wagon, one and one-half miles north of Breed, near Colorado Springs, at 9 30 last Saturday night.

The machine crashed against a telegraph pole, cutting the pole in two, and leaving the upper part dangling in the air. Hughes jumped, but his chauffeur stuck to the wheel. Aside from a few bruises, neither was injured.

Hughes was on his way to Colorado Springs to spend Saturday night and Sunday. He was late for an engagement and was speeding the car on a fine stretch of road. Shortly before he reached Breed, which is about eight miles north of Colorado Springs, a wagon loomed up in the darkness ahead of the car. Rather than crash into the wagon, Hughes ordered his chauffeur to turn the car into the ditch, since a collision between the auto and wagon meant probable death to the driver of the wagon.

The car was towed into this city for repairs. The damages will amount to approximately $250. Hughes remained here yesterday at the Antlers hotel, and returned to Denver by train last night. He has been a member of the Denver Country club polo team for several years and is one of the best polists in the state. He is also prominent in other sports. He has visited here often and has many friends in Colorado Springs, especially at the Cheyenne Mountain Country club.

WOULD HAVE OFFERED THRONE TO ABRUZZI

PARIS, Oct. 17.—A special dispatch from Athens says officers of the Greek army responsible for the movement against the monarch in August, reached a decision at that time to offer the throne to the Duke of the Abruzzi in the event of the abdication of King George. After an agreement was reached between the government and the mutinous troops, an official statement was issued denying the movement was against the king or ministry.

DRAG SKELETON FROM GRAVEYARD OF POLITICS

Ivins Accused of Having Offered Bribe to Henry George as Croker's Agent.

REFORMER IS QUOTED

Charge Puts Champion of Hearst and Civic Virtue in Doubtful Company.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Taken from the graveyard of forgotten campaigns, a political skeleton was brought out in New York tonight after 20 years' hiding, adding intensity to the three-cornered struggle for the mayor's chair, for which William J. Gaynor, Democratic, William R. Hearst, Independent, and Otto T. Bannard, Republican, are struggling.

It had to do with the political record of William M. Ivins, Hearst's ardent Republican supporter, and came in the form of a statement by Henry George, Jr., son and biographer of the famous single tax reformer, who charges that Ivins went to his father in 1886 and offered him inducements to withdraw from the mayoralty race against William R. Grace. As a matter of history, George refused to be sidetracked and entered the contest only to meet defeat.

Last night, Ivins, apparently expecting an attack on his alleged connection with the George-Grace campaign, denied that he had ever made any offer to Henry George to retire. As opposed to this, Henry George, Jr., said tonight.

In his statement, Mr. William Ivins denies a story that, in behalf of Richard Croker, he offered to Henry George, my father, $25,000 to withdraw from the contest in 1886.

In response to a statement in the newspapers by Abram S. Hewitt, relative to the campaign, my father, toward the close of the 1897 campaign, and just a few days before his death, issued a statement which, with attendant circumstances, may be found on pages 462-3 of "The Life of Henry George." The statement follows.

"Before my nomination had formally taken place (in 1886) I received a request from Mr. William M. Ivins, then chamberlain of the city and a close political friend and representative of Mr. Grace, privately to meet him I did so on Lafayette place. We sat down in a private room and smoked some cigars together. Mr. Ivins insisted that I could not possibly be elected mayor of New York, no matter how many people might vote for me, that the man who voted knew nothing of the real forces that dominated New York. He said that I could not be possibly counted in.

"He offered, on behalf of Tammany Hall and the county Democracy, that if I would refuse the nomination for mayor, they would run me for Congress and select a city district in which nomination was equivalent to election, that I should be at no expense whatever, but might go to Europe or anywhere I wished, and when I came back should receive a certificate of election to the House of Representatives.

"I said to him finally, 'You tell me I can't possibly get the office. Why, then, if I cannot possibly get the office, do you want me to withdraw?' His reply was, 'You cannot get elected, but your running will raise h—ll.' I said you have relieved me of embar-

25,000 WORSHIPERS

Great Religious Assemblage at Pittsburg Observes Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 17.—The greatest religious gathering ever held in this city and perhaps in the country occurred at Forbes field here today when about 25,000 persons assembled at the sacrament of the Lord's supper, the event being the principal feature of today's session of the convention of the Disciples of Christ, Christian church.

One hundred elders and 1,000 deacons of the church officiated in passing bread and wine to the great gathering, while a choir of 500 led the music.

JAPS ARE SHOPPING

Trade Experts Look for Larger Market as Result of Commission's Visit.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Extensive purchases in the United States by members of the honorary commercial commission of Japan of a large variety of manufactured articles which heretofore had not found a market in the country causes American trade experts to look for a heavy increase in trade between the United States and Japan as a result of the tour now being made by the commission.

In spite of the fact that the distinguished Japanese visitors have been received hospitably by every city visited thus far, it has been apparent in a number of places that the real purpose of the commission in coming to this country is not fully understood.

SAN FRANCISCO TO HAVE THE GREATEST WEEK OF CELEBRATION IN CITY'S HISTORY

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—Portola week will mark an epoch in the Golden Gate city. Its object is to celebrate the rebuilding of the city after the earthquake and its educational feature deals with the development of the west.

Every great movement will be pictured in the pageant. It will bear to the west what the Hudson-Fulton celebration, so recently celebrated, did to the east.

It was decided that the discoverer of San Francisco should be the patron. This was Gaspar de Portola, a Spanish captain of dragoons who in the reign of Charles III was sent on an expedition which resulted in the finding of San Francisco bay, and later the beginning of a Spanish mission under Father Junipero Serra, the head of the Franciscans, in the colony.

The program begins on Tuesday with the first of the three great historical pageants the entrance of Gaspar de Portola with his company of 100 dragoons (the pick of six-foot California manhood) mounted on coal black chargers and followed by the picturesque hordes of Indians and early Spanish settlers.

He will be escorted to Marshall square, where the old city hall stood. There he will meet his queen, the fairest girl in California, and the royal couple from that moment will rule the festivities.

Great Britain, France, Holland, Italy, China, Japan and other nations will be represented by their warships in the great armada.

There will be international balloon races, aeroplane flights, championship athletic games, marathons, polo, lacrosse, football, baseball, tennis and golf.

The streets will be festooned in Portola's red and yellow and the decorations and illuminations will be of a radiance never before approached. It will be an old Spanish fiesta on a gigantic scale.

The international armada will be the greatest ever gathered in a Pacific port. The flags of six nations will float over an array of men-of-war, bristling with guns that will stretch for miles along the waterfront and attract tens of thousands of spectators.

Great Britain with three vessels will have the largest representation of any of the foreign powers. The H. M. S. Bedford, one of the largest and most powerful cruisers in the English navy, will be the flagship of the British fleet. The Bedford was detached from the China squadron and sent to San Francisco for the Portola. The other British war vessels will be the Shearwater and Algerine. Never before in the history of the United States will Great Britain have had as many war vessels in an American Pacific port as in San Francisco next week.

While Japan will be represented by only one ship the big cruiser Idzumo, the mikado sent along Prince Shimatzu with a message of good will. The Idzumo was the first of the foreign vessels to drop anchor in San Francisco bay, arriving here on October 11.

This vessel will be the object of much curiosity, as it went through several of the severe engagements of the Japanese-Russian war, and there is an interesting collection of relics aboard which the officers delight in showing visitors. The crew and officers are nearly the same as those who fought on the Idzumo in the war.

For the first time in nearly a quarter of a century the tricolor of Holland will be seen in a Pacific American port. Queen Wilhelmina sent the cruiser Noord-Brabant, one of the most modern in the Dutch navy, to San Francisco for the Portola.

The Italian cruiser Calabria comes to San Francisco, after a journey of eight weeks, from the eastern coast.

DEDICATES CHAPEL AT MILITARY POST

PRESIDENT IS GUEST OF SAN ANTONIO.

Will Review Troops at Fort Sam Houston and Lay Cornerstone Today.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 17.—President Taft arrived in the far south today. After 21 hours of continuous journeying from El Paso, he arrived here at 7.30 o'clock, and, despite the fact that it was Sunday night, was given a cheering welcome.

After being received by the city officials, the President was driven to the hotel with an escort of cavalry, and later went to Fort Sam Houston, where he assisted in the dedication and accepted on behalf of the government, the chapel erected at the famous old army post by citizens of San Antonio. President Taft has much to do, as secretary of war, with the building up of Fort Sam Houston into a brigade post and has always had a deep interest in it.

Tomorrow morning, the President will help to put in place the cornerstone of the nearly-completed chapel, will review troops stationed at Fort Sam Houston and, returning to the city, will make an address in Alamo plaza. He will leave in the afternoon for Gregory, Texas, near Corpus Christi, to pass four days on the ranch of his brother, Charles P. Taft.

The President's train passed through the thinly settled part of the state and made few stops.

At Del Rio, Sanderson and one or two other places, the President made brief speeches. The sage brush and cactus of the far west reaches of the state gave way as the day advanced to mesquite bushes and finally to the pasture lands and cotton fields, for which the state is famous.

The President's train was one of 14 specials running into San Antonio 10 minutes apart. Most of the trains were filled with troops returning to Fort Sam Houston from duty at the meeting of President Taft and President Diaz, yesterday.

The President, at the Pecos river,

BABY'S MILK.

Sterilized milk is not fit food for infants. Even pasteurizing, which requires a lower temperature, is injurious, notwithstanding the fact that the process destroys many disease-producing germs. If the natural food cannot be supplied, "certified" milk is the next best available. In many cases buttermilk made from fresh milk artificially is better. In this artificial buttermilk a specially "friendly" germ is cultivated and the development of others prevented. Goat's milk is preferable to cow's. Less than half a dozen cases of tuberculosis in goats are recorded while the cow is peculiarly liable to it, especially since they are so closely housed, overfed at times and confined in close quarters. A goat can be kept on a city lot, it is easily fed and it may easily be trained to milking.

CRITICAL DATE FOR THE NATIONAL GUARD

NOW RULING TO TAKE EFFECT JANUARY 21.

Militia Not Conforming to Standards of Regular Army Get No Money.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—January 21, 1911, will be a critical date in the history of the National guard, it was announced today, for thereafter no portion of the money appropriated by Congress for the support of the militia can be paid to any organization that fails to conform to standards of the regular army.

Next year, for the first time in its history, the militia, or so much of it as remains under the caption of the "National Guard," will be found armed with the latest pattern rifles, clothed from head to foot in regular army gear, supplied with all regular equipment, and with ranks filled to the requirements of the law.

The improvement has been general, but markedly so in the south, which formerly had been regarded as a weak spot by strict disciplinarians of the regular army, who felt that in that section undue prominence had been given to the social and club features of the militiamen at the sacrifice of military quality.

The west also is doing well, though there are some spots regarded as weak, notably in Nevada, where, it is said, there is not a single company of the National guard able to establish a claim to a dollar of the large annual appropriations made by Congress.

SIX HUNDRED DROWN

Water-Filled Crater in East Java Bursts, Overwhelming Native Villages.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 17.—Advices were brought by the steamer Empress of India today that 600 people were drowned early in September in East Java as a result of the bursting of a crater filled with water. When the mountain top lake was released by a breach in the crater's side, the waters swept down enormous quantities of sand and mud, overwhelming the kampongs at the foot.

Rivers overflowed and the railroad near Lumajang was swept away. Officials placed the number of dead at 600, those buried alive in the stricken villages numbering from 80 to 150. The district is famine stricken as the harvested grain was swept away.

Reports From Nicaragua Indicate That Movement Was Ably Planned.

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua, Oct. 17.—It is reported here that Corinto, the principal seaport of Nicaragua on the Pacific coast, is in the hands of revolutionists, which would seem to indicate that the plan of General Estrada and other leaders embraced a simultaneous uprising at a number of points, especially at the seaports, to prevent the departure of President Zelaya from the country.

The revolutionists are now in possession, if this report be true, of Corinto, Bluefields, Rivas, Cape Gracias, Masaya and San Juan Del Norte. In addition they have occupied the telegraph station at Chinandega.

WORLDWIDE AGITATION OF OMINOUS PORTENT

From Three Continents Echoes of Ferrer's Execution Swell in Volume, and Retaliation Upon Spain and Its King Is Cry.

BOMBS EXPLODE BY WHOLESALE IN BARCELONA

Boycott Against Spanish Goods Initiated at Havana and Buenos Ayres, and Anticlerical Movement Put Under Way in Italy. Anarchistic Speeches in New York.

LISBON, Oct. 17.—Cable dispatches from Barcelona state that the situation there is increasingly disquieting. Twenty-seven bombs have been thrown in the last four days, five persons being killed and 21 wounded.

On Saturday an attempt was made to rush the fortress of Montjuich to release the prisoners. A bomb was thrown against the door but it failed to explode, and the attacking party fled.

PARIS, October 17.—Alejandro Lerroux, chairman of the Republicans in the chamber, in an interview here today predicted a revolution in Spain and the establishment of a republic. He considered the execution of Ferrer the outcome of personal vengeance of King Alfonso, who, he said, always was convinced of Ferrer's complicity in the bomb throwing against the king on his wedding day.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Aroused by the speech of Emma Goldman, 6,000 men and women, Socialists, anarchists and other radicals, packed an east side hall today and, unmolested by the police, adopted resolutions denouncing the execution of Ferrer.

"Alfonso, the assassin," was muttered in three languages, English, Spanish and French, as the succeeding speakers attacked the Spanish monarch and hinted that revenge was to come.

Emma Goldman sought to draw a parallel between the case of Ferrer and those of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone of the Western Federation of Miners. It was announced that a more comprehensive gathering will be held at Carnegie hall Tuesday night.

The resolutions adopted recite in part:

The murder of Ferrer was committed by the unholy trinity—church, monarchy and government. This trinity revenged itself because Ferrer instigated free anticlerical schools wherein the results of independent science and pedagogy were taught.

This meeting denounces the murder as one of the worst and most cowardly crimes ever committed under the disguise of the law and expresses its sincerest sympathy and solidarity with the thousands of fighters for freedom who still struggle in the clutches of the Spanish inquisition.

Although denounced by the resolutions, the death of Ferrer was hailed by Emma Goldman as a cause for rejoicing rather than of mourning.

"I am not here to mourn, but to celebrate Ferrer's death," she said. "In this age of greed, cowardice and indifference, we must rejoice that there was a man like Ferrer, who had rather die than live like a dog. If I believed that the American workmen had enough revolutionary spirit, I would ask them to follow the examples of France and Italy, go on a general strike and declare to their bosses their strength, in honor of Ferrer."

Socialists Rabid.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The red flag was raised in London this afternoon and a large mob moved upon the Spanish embassy to make a demonstration of its disapproval of the execution of Professor Francesco Ferrer at Barcelona.

Several bodies of police were stationed at the approaches to the embassy and they drove off the crowds in their usual bloodless, effectual way. No one was injured seriously, although the mounted police rode against the crowds and scattered them several times.

The trouble began with a mass meeting in Trafalgar square organized by several Socialist and labor bodies. Several hundred members of these organizations marched to the square carrying red flags draped with crepe and bearing inscriptions denouncing King Alfonso. A black-bordered banner was raised against the Nelson column, with big letters: "TO H——L WITH THE MURDERER ALFONSO."

Several laborite members of parliament spoke. Victor Grayson of Manchester, Socialist member, capped the climax by declaring that if the head of every king of Europe were torn from his body it would not pay half the price of Ferrer's life. He called the Russian czar a "dirty monster," and said King Edward, who could have prevented the execution was responsible for whatever might happen in England as a result of it. He demanded the expulsion of the Spanish minister.

Strong resolutions were adopted. Several thousand persons assembled in the square.

The Socialist societies carrying banners then marched in good order to the Spanish embassy singing revolutionary songs and hooting King Alfonso. A great rabble accompanied them. It was dark when they reached the open space in front of the embassy and they found that the square was filled with patrons of police. The embassy windows were dark, and there was no sign of life there. The police would not let the procession enter the square or even stop. They reserves drove the mob into the side streets, dispersing it without trouble.

ROME, Oct. 17.—All indications point to the fact that the extremists in Italy are determined to undertake an anticlerical campaign, more vigorous even than that in France. This is being directed by the Masons whose grand master has issued a most violent manifesto in behalf of Ferrer and against the church. The manifesto says:

"Sacerdotal tyranny, still vermillion with Italian blood imposed and obtained through the fright of a king and the cowardice of the government the slaughter of an innocent who was not judged but murdered. Italy which has seen scaffolds ridden down and piled to the stakes and the slaughter even of unarmed women and children ordered by the church must understand its duty. Rome which has inside its walls the vatican that for centuries has supported all tyrannies from which, to our shame, the slaughter of Barcelona originated, must decree that the last crime will not remain unpunished."

An international subscription has been opened to collect funds to establish, in the piazza of St. Peters facing the vatican, Ferrer's modern school which was suppressed at Barcelona.

Demonstrations Orderly.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—Anti-Spanish demonstrations culminated today in meetings and processions in the larger cities of France, organized by the Socialists and workmen's organizations. The organizers laid emphasis on the peaceful character of the demonstrations, and although violent speeches were made, little disorder is reported.

In Paris the government had taken elaborate precautions to prevent the recurrence of rioting. The procession passed through a double line of police and troops, but the leaders themselves furnished a line of pickets who aided in preserving order. No collisions occurred in this city. Socialist deputies and municipal councilors headed the procession, which was composed of about 12,000 persons who sang the Internationale.

While passing the Spanish embassy and several churches there were cries of "Down with the clergy." "Down with Spain," but the majority of the paraders refrained from disorder of any kind, obedient to the instruction of the leaders.

Rowdies attacked a guard in the Tuileries gardens and attempted to throw him into the lake, but the police rescued him. Only one shot was fired. Twelve rioters were arrested.

Mob Stones Church.

HAVANA, Oct. 17.—A disorderly mob of several thousand, including a majority of the university students and many Spaniards, made a demonstration today in memory of Francisco Ferrer. They marched through the

CONVICTS CAPTURED

Posse Gets Three Fugitives After Two Battles; One Dead, Another Dying.

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 17.—The battle that began last night between a posse of 50 men and three escaped convicts was resumed at dawn today, the result being that one convict is dead and another mortally wounded. A third was seriously wounded last night.

The battle took place on the bank of the Willamette river, 15 miles [illegible] here, near the scene of last night's fight.

The dead man is Carlos Carter, sentenced from eastern Oregon for horse stealing, and leader of the gang.

George Duncan was shot through the stomach and will probably die. He also was serving a sentence for horse stealing and is believed to have been Carter's partner. A [illegible] was shot through the left arm, the bullet lodging in the lung. He is in a serious condition. He was serving a sentence for burglary.

JUDGE CHAP B. MAGOON,
Former Provisional Governor of Cuba.

STUYVESANT FISH,
Prominent Railroad Man and Financier.

MAGOON MAY BE CHOICE TO SUCCEED CRANE; FISH ONCE DECLINED THE POST

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The arrival here today of Charles E. Magoon, former provisional governor of Cuba, at that time President Taft's first lieutenant in the islands, promptly gave rise to the rumor that he had been summoned in connection with the new vacancy in the diplomatic post in Pekin, from which Charles R. Crane was removed.

Mr. Magoon insisted that he had not been summoned by the state department to report here, but would not discuss the matter further. In this connection, it is declared that minor officials of the department had nothing to do with the recall of Minister Crane, Secretary Knox issued the order personally from his summer home in Pennsylvania.

The fact that Mr. Magoon cut his vacation in half and returned unexpectedly from Europe lends color to the report.

So far as could be learned today in official circles tonight, the name of Stuyvesant Fish of New York had not been considered in connection with the United States ministership to China. The report published in Shanghai and cabled to this country relative to the probable appointment of Mr. Fish to fill the vacancy in the Chinese mission, was, however, read with interest in this city.

The belief was expressed by a high official of the state department that no serious consideration has been given to the selection. It is not thought likely, he said, that the matter will be taken up in earnest before President Taft returns to Washington. Mr. Fish, he added, is held in high regard among state department officials for his administrative ability.

In casting about last summer for a successor to Minister Rockhill, who had been transferred as ambassador to Russia, the name of Stuyvesant Fish was suggested, but it was found that he did not care for the position.

Gaynor will this week take the stump under auspices of the regular organization in the several boroughs. He will appear at least 20 times before the campaign closes.

Mr. Ivins issued the following statement late tonight in reply:

"The quotation which Henry George, Jr., makes, is, if my recollection serves, taken from that gentleman's life of his father. My own memory is in no respect faulty with regard to my relations with Henry George, Sr., but that is no issue in the present campaign.

"In 1897 I denied that I had ever offered Mr. George a nomination in behalf of Tammany Hall and I also denied that any such conversation as that here given took place between us. I still deny it. Mr. George is dead, and I care to say nothing further of the matter. Even the courts will not permit one to testify to a conversation with parties deceased.

"It will be noted that Mr. George does not repeat the accusation which was made yesterday that I attempted to bribe his father."

DR. ROLLER, SECOND GREATEST WRESTLER IN AMERICA, VISITS COLORADO SPRINGS

Dr. E F. Roller of Seattle, Wash., one of the most prominent men in the wrestling world today, and Mrs. Roller, spent yesterday in Colorado Springs. They were accompanied by Dr. Roller's manager, Jack Curley, and Mrs. Curley, of New York

The party made the Pikes Peak trip in the afternoon, and left last night for Denver, where Dr Roller will probably give an exhibition wrestling match.

Dr. Roller has been one of the leading professional wrestlers for a number of years. He is a graduate of De Pauw and of the University of Pennsylvania, and is probably better acquainted with the world champion, Frank Gotch, than any other wrestler. Roller and Gotch have met time after time, but Gotch has always managed to beat his Seattle opponent. No man in the country is better qualified to discourse on catch-as-catch-can wrestling than Dr. Roller. He is a thorough student of the game and is said by Champion Gotch to be the second best professional wrestler in the country. This is proven by the fact that while Roller has met every first-class wrestler in the United States, he has yet to lose a fall to any man except the champion.

Dr. Roller declares that Gotch is the most wonderful athlete of the day. Dr. Roller and Charles Postl posed for the pictures with which Spalding's book on professional wrestling is illustrated.

JEFF SURE HE WILL WIN FROM JACK JOHNSON

QUEENSTOWN, Oct. 17.—When James J. Jeffries, American heavyweight pugilist, who is a passenger on the steamer Lusitania bound for New York, after a period of training in a suburb of Paris, heard of Johnson's victory over Stanley Ketchel at San Francisco, he said this in no way would affect his plans. Ketchel, he added, was only a middleweight and not by any means the best of the middleweights.

"Ketchel," continued Jeffries, "is trying to feed himself up to make the heavyweight class, but it will only weaken him. Johnson is not much of a fighter, and he never met a good man. His fight with Burns was no test. Burns is a newspaper fighter. I can only hope that Johnson will cover my money. I would not fight him if I did not think I could beat him."

One of Jeffries' friends who is traveling with him, remarked that the fight between Jeffries and Johnson would be a joke. Jeffries now weighs 230 pounds, and he says he will fight at 210 or 212 pounds.

passed over what is said to be the highest railway bridge in the world. The river runs in a rocky canon 325 feet below the rails. The wind was blowing a gale as the President's train passed over the slender steel structure and the engineer ran at a snail's pace.

The President accepted and dedicated the chapel at Fort Sam Houston tonight in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the army. In doing so he preached his fourth sermon of the trip.

Del Rio Speech.

In his speech at Del Rio, the President said:

It is encouraging to go through the country and find out how much has been done by the energy and enterprise of the people with conditions that seem discouraging at first.

A man has to travel about the country to know what this country is, and in going about, incidentally he is able to show himself and let the people of the country see the man they temporarily have assigned to the position of chief executive. I don't remember that there was a great many votes in favor of assigning me to that position by this state, but I I am not engaged in a partisan trip. I am not here either as a Republican or a Democrat. I am glad to find that in Texas as in other states I have visited, that sort of welcome that comes to the head of a nation of which I am certain from your looks you are all proud.

Impressed by Irrigation.

I suppose you are interested in irrigation. This western trip has impressed me deeply with the importance of irrigation. We are exhausting the land of the east and the high price of farm products and everything of that kind is explained by the fact that we are using up most of the land, and, unless we can extend our territory by making that which has heretofore been a desert useful, we are up against it principal streets, carrying red flags and cheering for anarchy.

You were going to have a kind of a joint debate among your brother Democrats down here, but I understand this is given up.

Two outdoor meetings were held at which orations were delivered. Resolutions were passed to boycott all Spanish goods and to accept the offer of the stevedores union to refuse to unload Spanish ships until Spain rescinds the order confiscating Ferrer's estate.

The mob attempted to approach the Spanish consulate and the bishop's palace but was driven back by the police.

GOVERNMENT RELENTLESS IN PURSUIT OF MAYBRAY GANG OF FAKE PROMOTERS

SAN JOSE, Col., Oct. 17.—That the government is actively at work in the prosecution of the famous Maybray gang of swindlers, indictments against 84 of whom were returned by a federal grand jury at Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 23, is shown by the arrest of four confederates made recently at San Jose by Postoffice Inspector James O'Connell of this city, acting in cooperation with Inspectors Aliman and Ranger of the St. Louis division, and assisted by Arthur B. Langford, the sheriff of the county.

The men taken into custody are F. W. Brown, R. B. Harriman, E. C. Moore and Walter R. Knox. They were arrested at 246 Park avenue, where they had fitted up sumptuous apartments, from which they were directing the operations of the gang on this coast. With them at the time of the arrest was a well-dressed young woman, who was taken to the police station with the others, but who refused to give her name.

The operations of the gang have been carried out in the conducting of fake prize fights, horse races and foot races in various parts of the country, and the amounts which have been taken from victims are said to aggregate over $500,000.

When the indictments were returned into court in Council Bluffs they were placed on the secret files owing to the fact that it was impossible to make all the arrests at once. James C. Maybray, the alleged leader of the gang, was taken into custody in Arkansas soon after, and the four arrested are said to be of the 15 directors of the swindling operation.

The capture in San Jose was effected by the postoffice inspectors after they had got the clew from the fact that Knox, who was staying at the St. Francis here, was forwarding mail to San Jose. All four have the appearance of prosperous business men, and the authorities say that after the gang was driven out in the east the principal office has been maintained in San Jose. In spite of the fact that the indictments were on the charge of using the United States mail for fraudulent purposes, the office in San Jose continued to receive mail from the confederates in other parts of the country, and it is claimed that there are no less than 300 members of the gang in different parts of the country.

The federal authorities have the statements of no less than 90 victims in different parts of the country who were fleeced of sums ranging from $5,000 to $30,000, the operations of the gang having been consistently on a large scale, and often under the protection of bribed officials.

Among the victims is O. L. Cramer, proprietor of the Malta apartments in this city, who lost $9,900 on a fake prize fight in August, 1906.

It is expected that the trials will take place either at Red Rock in November or at Des Moines in December,

WITH THE DEVOTEES OF ANCIENT HISTORY

AMERICAN SOCIETY PERFORMS IMPORTANT WORK.

Records of Great Historical Value. Franklin's Story of First Aerial Flight.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

The American Antiquarian society is meeting today in annual session at Worcester, Mass. This society is made up of many of America's foremost people, and lacks but three years of completing its hundredth anniversary. The late Senator Hoar was one of its leading spirits during his life, and so was the venerable Edward Everett Hale, who was a member of the society for more than 60 years, and held the record for length of membership It has a library of more than 100,000 volumes, and one of the finest collections of antiquaria Americana in existence. It has property valued at about a quarter of a million dollars, and several substantial buildings for administrative and library purposes.

When Bancroft came to write his history of the United States, one of his principal sources of information was the library of this society. Some of the rarest and most interesting manuscripts relating to American history are to be found there.

Among these interesting manuscripts are the letters of Benjamin Franklin, in which he reported the first balloon ascensions in France. Had he been a modern day newspaper reporter, his descriptions of the conquests of the air by the Wrights and other aviators could not have been more vivid or picturesque. In fact, when one reads his descriptions of the first conquests of the air he wonders whether the world did not lose more when it gave Franklin to the eighteenth century than if he had been reserved for the present generation

The First Balloon.

Reciting the details of the ascension of the first balloon, he tells how it was a globe 12 feet in diameter, made of oiled silk, with the parts sewed together while wet and the seams carefully covered over with an air-tight dressing. It was filled, he says, with inflammable air made by pouring oil of vitriol on filings of iron, and it had a lifting capacity 29 pounds greater than its own weight. Upon being released, it made a bee line upward to the clouds, and was no larger than an orange when it passed into the mists of the skies.

It was not heard from for some time When it came back to earth, it had burst, Franklin surmising that from reaching such rarefied air the internal pressure exceeded the external and caused the bursting of the bag When it landed, the natives saw it bounding on the ground, and, thinking it contained some wild animal, fell upon it with knives and sticks and stones. They cut it to pieces, but it was carried back to the city and repaired

Franklin bridles his imagination after describing the event and attempts to foretell the future He concludes that the air is conquered, that hereafter captive balloons will be anchored at every homestead, and that by the use of pulleys and strong ropes the people will pull their game and other meats into the skies for safekeeping and natural refrigeration, and that no matter how hot the weather may be, natural ice can be had at a moment's notice simply by sending a pailful of water up into the heavens and allowing it to freeze In addition to this, the philosopher showed that he had the germ of the amusement park creator. He observed that nothing would be more natural than that some promoter—only that was not the word he used should capitalize the idea by establishing a scenic railway to the clouds, where, for a guinea anyone might get a birdseye view of the earth below and the heavens above.

Franklin's Descriptions.

The next ascension carried a sheep, a duck and a cock. This balloon was larger than the former, and the gas used was of a cheaper variety Franklin "covers" this story with equal minuteness, except that he does not describe the sensations of the sheep, the duck and the cock. But he does record the fact that the sheep and the duck stood the trip exceedingly well, while the cock surrendered his life as a matyr to science and aerial navigation. Franklin also describes the third ascension, in which two passengers were carried They made their balloon gas by burning straw, and when they wanted to go higher they simply fed more straw into the furnace When they wanted to come lower they found it easy by using less straw.

With the navigation of the air now making such wonderful strides, the letters of Franklin describing in minute detail the beginnings, become one of the most interesting series in existence, and they will be much in demand by the historians of the flying-machine epoch in world history They rank high among the interesting possessions of the Antiquarian society.

Another paper in the possession of the society which is of more than ordinary interest, in the light of present conditions, is one of the first commercial announcements of the telephone. It states that the telephone is a recent invention, and recites that "it transmits, with equal facility, names figures, foreign words, or plain English; that no skill is required to operate it except to speak distinctly and to listen attentively" The declaration is made that its working parts are completely out of sight inclosed in an attractive mahogany case, and that they neither move nor give any other sign when they are in use, that these working parts consist of a coil and a disk of sheet iron

Colonial Records.

Many of the papers of the society relate to early colonial times in New England They are published in biennial volumes, beginning with 1849 and running to the present. These volumes, which also give a record of the annual transactions of the society, are not of extensive circulation, but are prized possessions of the libraries which have complete sets of them. It is a strange fact that the greater number of the books of the library of the society did not come from the members themselves, but are the donations of those who are not members

The society co-operates with the Antiquarian society of Philadelphia and with other institutions Together, they have rendered great service to the nation in saving the trash of yesterday which has become the treasure of today Along with the archeological societies, the anthropological associations, and other institutions for recording our past, they are doing much to insure the handing down to posterity of facts which might otherwise be only shadowy traditions

While most of the work of the antiquarian societies of the United States has been in the direction of preserving to the future the intimate stories of the beginnings of American history they also have been interested to note that the present worldwide interest in archeological research had its real beginning in part in the indefatigable labors of an American citizen Count Cesnola, who was an Italian by birth but who came to America and served with distinction in the federal army during the Civil war, was appointed consul to Cyprus in 1865. He was inspired with the idea that this island was the door between Europe and Asia, and that it must be full of relics of the nations of the past.

He soon devoted his entire energies to investigation, starting at Chittim of the Old Testament times. Within a year, he found the sites of three other old cities "Sea-born Salamis," Golgos and Idalium. At Chittim, he found that the graves had been plundered, probably during one of the early crusades. He found a temple dedicated to Demeter, and next to it a tomb which contained 600 gold coins of Alexander and his father, Philip of Macedon At Kurium, he found a wonderful lot of treasures of incalculable historical value, including the official seal of Thotmes II. of Egypt, who conquered Cyprus 3,300 years ago. There were more than 1,200 articles, more than half of which were gold, in a series of vaults. The whole archeological world tried to secure the treasures found by Cesnola, the British museum in particular bidding large sums for them, but he was loyal to the country of his adoption, and those relics are now to be seen in the New York Museum of Natural History and Art

Americans Active.

From that day to the present, the United States, the youngest among the principal nations of the world, has taken a leading part in all the antiquarian and archeological movements of the day. Her scientists are assisting in locating the buried cities of the Nile, and of the Assyrian and Babylonish empire. Pompeii and Rome are likewise yielding up the treasures of 20 and 40 centuries ago, much of the work being done by the tireless picks and shovels of American antiquarians and archeologists.

To excavate the site of the great temple at Memphis will require an annual expenditure of $15,000 for at least 15 years. There is no definite account of the total cost of archeological and antiquarian work, but it runs into the millions every year. The Carnegie institution and the Smithsonian are both lending a hand in these explorations, and many of the leading universities have parties in the field.

It isthrough the antiquarian and the archeologist that the world gets its most intimate pictures of the life and times before the Christian era. As the student of geology finds layer upon layer and stratum upon stratum, each telling its own story of a different age and a diverse period, so the archeologist sometimes discovers city built upon city. In some of the ancient places a half dozen cities have been razed by war, their ruins covered over, and another city planted above. A Carthage may have been destroyed and a plow driven over every foot of its site, but human nature has been so much the same in every age that the city site selected by one generation and one race often appealed to those who came after them. The earthquake in Sicily revealed buried cities under the habitations of hundreds of thousands of people who were totally unconscious that they were living upon the ruins of a departed race.

dertakings has caused him to be regarded as one of the foremost American diplomats.

He was remarkably successful in relations with the Latin-American peoples, not only because of his complete mastery of the Spanish language, but also because of his ability to enter into the peculiar mental processes of the South and Central American people.

Mr. Buchanan was appointed United States minister to the Argentine republic by President Cleveland in 1894. He devoted himself to extending and improving American trade with South America. He negotiated a reciprocity treaty between Argentine and America that gave great promise of mutual benefit to business interests of the two countries, but this failed of ratification by the United States Senate. One of his most noteworthy achievements while in Buenos Ayres was his settlement of a fierce boundary dispute between Argentine and Chile, which threatened to involve the two countries in war.

Mr. Buchanan, as director general, successfully managed the Buffalo Pan-American exposition.

Scarcely had he finished his service as a delegate to the second Pan-American conference in Mexico City in 1902 before he was again drafted into the diplomatic service to become the first United States minister to Panama, where, owing to his tact, he was able to adjust many difficult issues.

Voluntarily relinquishing that post when his work was done, Mr. Buchanan went later to Europe as the representative of large business concerns. But soon another call came from the state department and he went first to the Rio Janeiro conference and then to Venezuela American concessions and diplomatic business generally were in bad shape in that country and Mr. Buchanan succeeded in arranging for a private settlement of four of the five great American claims against Venezuela and for the reference to The Hague tribunal of the fifth.

He had been named as agent for America in the presentation of this case that of the Orinoco Steamship company—to The Hague tribunal. when he left New York for London recently, and was in conference with the state department almost up to the day of his death in regard to that business.

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, uric-acid-eliminating materials, in concentrated concentrated form. With this help Nature regains the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and throw off lingering obstructions. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies the blood, and nourishes the tissues in the establishment of sound and vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. And you are the king of the earth but the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

"DOPED" FOODS.

NOW and then a news item concerning food adulteration gets into print which makes one wonder if it would not be well if the pure foods laws contained penalty clauses two or three times more stringent than they are now. For instance, a few days ago the Illinois States Food Commission started a crusade against Chicago dealers who were selling "doped" fish, hams, bacon and sausage. The remarkably low price at which these dealers were selling smoked salmon first aroused suspicion. Investigation showed that most of this "salmon" was carp from nearby streams which, according to the dispatches, "had been given a bath of pink paint and then subjected to a treatment in 'liquid smoke.'" The ingredients of these are not claimed as deadly poisons, but are recognized as having a cumulative poisonous effect, meaning that continued consumption would produce death. Ham, bacon and sausage was found to be similarly prepared for sale. The commission decided that the sale of this stuff could be continued on condition that it bear tags showing its real nature, and that signs to the same effect be conspicuously displayed in the stores.

EVASIONS OF PURE FOOD LAW.

It would be foolish and unjust to condemn all food manufacturers for the misdeeds of these who—probably relatively small in number—produce foods so palpably unfit for consumption that they can only be sold by resort to deception. But there is no doubt that enormous quantities of injurious foodstuffs are constantly being unloaded on the public in evasion of the pure food laws. The condition is by no means as bad as it was before the law was passed three years ago, but it is bad enough. The opportunities for evasion are almost unlimited, and even when the offender is caught he has a good chance of escaping prosecution altogether on promise to sin no more, or of getting off with a light fine.

When competent chemists and physiologists decide, after thorough investigation, that a certain preservative or adulterant is injurious to health, the law ought to recognize the fact by flatly forbidding the sale of foods which contain such ingredients. In the case here cited it would seem that the Illinois commission adopted an unwise compromise. It would have been better to forbid the sale of carp treated with "pink paint" and "liquid smoke," but permit dealers to sell the fish as carp, when properly smoked. It is not enough to tag the "doped" fish in the manner described, for the people who buy such stuff with full knowledge of its real nature are generally the poor and ignorant classes who do not realize its harmfulness even when it is explained, and therefore deserve fuller protection by law. A food which admittedly contains a cumulative poison has no right to the protection of a pure food law or a pure food commission.

THE SPEED OF AN AEROPLANE.

WILBUR WRIGHT, who has already attained a speed with his aeroplane of nearly fifty miles an hour, remarked the other day that in a race he could fly at a sixty, or even a seventy-mile, pace. He would reduce the size and weight of the planes, but retain an engine of the size now used.

Records in aeroplane flight have been made and broken with such startling rapidity this year that nothing that could happen would be more than mildly surprising. Less than two years ago most people, presumably well informed, scoffed at the idea of successful flight in heavier-than-air machines. When this was accomplished the scoffers found refuge in the assertion that the aeroplane would never be of practical, commercial value. It would continue to be merely a scientific toy. But in this short time much has been done to make it of practical value. True, the number of men successfully operating aeroplanes is extremely limited, but only because the time has been too short for its use to be generally learned. The machine itself is quite simple, but its operation is difficult to learn, because in addition to a cool head and a steady hand the operative must have accurate knowledge of air currents, etc. The wonderful exhilaration of flight will tempt the adventurous spirits who now go in for auto racing to learn to operate aeroplanes for it will not be long until factories are turning them out by the hundreds. And when that happens we can expect a series of accidents that will make the motor racing death roll of the present seem tame in comparison.

"JOY" RIDES IN THE AIR

The Wrights have shown remarkable common sense throughout their career, and their recent announcement that they 'did not intend to make circus performers of themselves"—that is, make a business of giving public exhibitions merely to satisfy the curiosity of beholders—further justifies this opinion. But there will be plenty of other aviators who will not take this view, and as the number increases the contests will be more frequent. This will mark the beginning of an era of reckless flying with untrained aviators as the public pants which will end only with some terrible accident or series of accidents.

Somehow it seems necessary for men to go through this preliminary stage of reckless excesses with every new invention for shortening distance and time in travel. When the bicycle craze was at its height every wheelman was anxious to ride as far and as fast as possible. "Century runs" were the fad, but now the bicycle has become merely a thing of utility, and a man who got out on a hot summer day to make a "century run" would be classed as crazy. The automobile is now in the stage that the bicycle was in fifteen years ago, but unquestionably the craze will pass away and the auto will take its place as a quick, convenient means of transportation instead of a vehicle for "joy rides." And now comes the aeroplane as the next thing for the joy rider to go crazy over, and this he will proceed to do until a few headlong tumbles to death and destruction bring the whole tribe of joy riders to their senses.

SPELLING IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

THERE is something radically wrong in the present mode of education in the grammar and high schools of the country. Leading educators will not challenge the statement as it stands, for so many shortcomings and defects are recognized by those frank enough to admit them that the whole system of primary education has been for the past several years in a state of chaos in consequence of experiments aiming to overcome them.

The tendency, let it be admitted, is on the whole in the right direction. The increase of urban and village population has made absolutely imperative increased attention to lines of work, such as manual training of various sorts, aiming to take the place of the self-instruction which the youth of preceding generations found in much larger degree on the farm and in the household. The increasing necessity for young people to go to earning money as soon as or before they have finished high school, and often even before they have entered it, has demanded the introduction of studies especially fitting pupils to go immediately into commercial life and the increased adaptation of the curriculum to the theory that the grammar and high school courses should be in a way a complete education for those who can not pursue further studies.

SIDELER BRANCHES NEGLECTED.

On the other hand there seems to be plenty of evidence that the rudimentary branches are suffering. There are certain things, such as the three R's, so called, that must be taught. And in the attempt to crowd art and music and gymnastics and manual training, not to mention sundry and other courses which are being "emphasized," the young idea is having education poured down his throat in such quantity that his mental digestive apparatus must perforce leave some of it unassimilated.

A recent examination for freshmen at Northwestern University is highly suggestive evidence that among the things which should be taught and are not being taught is spelling. The entrance candidates, high school graduates, all of them—were asked to spell such words as "irregular," "counterfeit," "plumage," "municipal," and the like, and the attempts made to spell words that to the average 12-year-old child of a generation ago would have been simple were in many cases so ludicrous as to be pathetic.

The inadequacy of present methods of teaching spelling, or at least of the present amount of attention given the subject, which this examination indicates as prevalent generally, would not be so deplorable were it not that, as there is plenty of evidence to prove, the English work in the colleges and universities of the country, is no more thorough or effective. University graduates with degrees from both academic and professional schools who can not spell simple words correctly, to say nothing of being wholly incapable of writing an ordinary letter in decent English, are rather the rule than the exception. The arraignment is severe, but it is nevertheless justified by the facts.

MR CRANE THE VICTIM OF HIS UNRULY TONGUE.

From the Baltimore Sun

Mr. Charles R. Crane, minister to China, has tendered his resignation, having been advised by Secretary Knox that his retirement would be for the good of the diplomatic service. Thus passes from public life and from the field of diplomacy a man who has found his tongue his undoing—a disastrously unruly member. Mr. Crane may well reflect in the language of a poet of pessimism, "Now that I am so soon done for, I wonder what I was begun for." The passing of Mr. Crane out of the limelight into the melancholy obscurity of a "has-been" has blighted a career which offered thrilling possibilities. He might have become a figure of eminence in the orient. He might have written his name large in the history of China, for events of tremendous importance are likely to occur at any time in the Celestial empire. It was a sad and inglorious day for him when he closed the gates of Pekin to himself by taking the world into his confidence. Secretary Knox exercises his powers of censorship with inflexible sternness. If a secretary of state of his type had had jurisdiction over the President in the administration of Mr. Roosevelt, would the latter have spoken less frequently and with greater wisdom? Perhaps the censor has never lived who could have prescribed metes and bounds to the verbal activities of Col. Theodore Roosevelt.

AN EXAMPLE FOR PROHIBITIONISTS.

From the Chicago Tribune

General Fred D. Grant is a total abstainer. He wishes that everybody would let liquor alone. Nothing makes so much trouble in the army as liquor, and yet he would welcome the return of the canteen. He deplored at the time the flabbiness of Congress in allowing itself to be swayed by the spectacular and emotional appeals of some sincere but sadly mistaken women. So, while General Grant says that in theory he is a Prohibitionist, manifestly as regards the canteen he is not the slave of a theory.

Some Prohibitionists may say that he is illogical, that a man who is for the canteen is untrue to the cause. They should rather admit the soundness of his position and adopt his policy. He would like to see no drinking in the army, but as that is impossible he would lessen the drinking by restoring the canteen. Those who oppose it are the illogical ones, for they would foster drinking in the army.

The attitude of General Grant is essentially that of the Tribune, which opposed the abolition of the canteen and favors its restoration. Both he and it are practical friends of temperance and are doing all that lies in their power to promote it. There has been some effervescent talk among the Prohibitionists of making General Grant their next presidential candidate. It would be paying him a much higher compliment to cooperate with him in his practical recommendations for the advancement of the cause of temperance.

NOT ABSOLUTELY SAFE.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch

The arguments for aviation are becoming slightly overenthusiastic. A very strong advocate of the new method of propulsion writes to a New York paper to sustain the thesis that as between the two methods of moving on or over the earth aviation is by far the safer. He seems to recognize but one method of travel that by automobile. The death lists from automobile speed may go far toward giving color for his theory, but one of his arguments strikes the impartial mind as a little peculiar. "There are no steep hills to descend, when upon failure of brake or power his machine will go hurtling to a dread destruction."

It may of course be held that the distance from the level at which an aeroplane to the surface of the earth is not a "steep hill." But when a propeller breaks or rudder fails to work experience has already shown the descent to be as sheer and the impact on the ground to be as violent as anyone will care to encounter. Flying will be a terribly enticing amusement, but it takes a wild enthusiasm to recommend the safest practice of it as a refuge from the dangers of terra firma.

TALKED TOO MUCH.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch

The diplomatic career of Mr. Charles R. Crane has terminated before it began. Mr. Crane in retiring to private life, can indicate the cause of his official demise by the soliloquy of the fabled parrot.

It is hardly possible to avoid the reflection which this episode suggests as to the policy of selecting business men for diplomatic posts. The American business man is by no means sure to be diplomatic, and there is even less assurance of his thorough knowledge of the issue and methods of world politics. Certainly we regard the policy announced in the last administration and adhered to for some time as a superior one. That is to promote to the higher posts those whose service in lower positions affords a guarantee of both their ability and experience.

CANNONISM AND TAMMANY.

From the New York Times.

We have just had a glimpse, through the statements of Mr. Herbert Parsons, of the disgraceful deals which the "interests" are capable of making to advance their ends. To offer to Tammany the control of fraudulent votes in New York city as the price of support for Cannonism in Washington is a disgusting thing to all decent citizens who comprehend it, but it is a logical enough case of political barter. It is giving and taking pay in kind. The "goods" delivered by each party to the revolting traffic were of substantially the same sort, adapted to the same uses, having to those that obtained them much the same value. But it is to be borne in mind that the bargain, as far as the Republican traders were concerned, was for the advantage of the protected interests, and would hardly have been entered into but for that fact. The agents were bad enough. The principals were still worse. It is with the principals that the people must deal if they expect to bring about any serious and permanent improvement in the condition of our politics. It is not merely Cannon, it is Cannonism. It is the partnership between the brokers of the House and the real traders, the men with vast pecuniary stakes in legislation, that must be gotten rid of. That is the insidious and powerful force to which the speaker owes his power and which causes the corruption of which Mr. Parsons has disclosed only one instance, the latest but surely not the last.

The Daily Chit-Chat

I have done as well as so-and-so.

"I have done beter than some one-or-other," one hears people say continually.

The little girl is satisfied because she got as good a mark at school as the girl across the street.

The author is delighted because he has written a better story than his pet rival.

The housewife thinks she deserves praise because she has kept her house cleaner than Mrs. Somebody-or-other.

Comparing oneself with other people is weakening. We are continually letting ourselves be satisfied because we have done as well as or better than someone else.

And really, that's not the point at all. The point is simply and solely this. Has each of us done our part as well as it lay in him to do it?

Milton says that truly great men are modest "because they continually compare themselves not with other men, but with that ideal of the perfect which they have ever before their minds."

Isn't that a pretty good quotation to learn and a pretty good kind of modesty to make your ideal?

* * * * *

"And when I realized that I was writing letters to him that were simply histories of all my trouble I made up my mind that was not a bit the right way," said the little lady who thinks about things.

"Him" was her fiance. He lived in a distant city. Like all much-in-love fiancees they bridged the cruel gap by a daily letter and it was of these letters that she was speaking.

"I knew he would always sympathize with me," she said, "and I used to think I had to run to him in my letters with all my troubles."

"And then I realized how much worse they looked on paper and that he probably had troubles of his own, and I'm trying to do better."

Rather a good resolution for others besides her, don't you think?

No matter how gladly, how eagerly even, anyone gives it, sympathy IS something of a drain.

And it is possible to ask too much of it, even from those who love us.

Especially in letters.

If you love anyone you want to write him the kind of letters that will make him happy and the best way to do that certainly isn't to tell him all your petty troubles that you will probably have forgotten before you get an answer.

Stewed Potatoes. Generally left over potatoes are left for warming up. Cut them in dice, put in a shallow pan, and nearly cover with milk. Let them simmer very gently for at least one-half of an hour, that the milk may be absorbed. Make a cream sauce one cupful for every cupful of potatoes, and season lightly both potatoes and sauce. Pour over the potatoes, add a little chopped parsely, and serve. The cooking in the milk obviates the raw taste of the usual re-warmed potatoes.

Cress Sandwiches. Wash the cress thoroughly and dry in a cloth. Pick the leaves from the stems and season with salt. For all kinds of sandwiches it is best to butter the end of the loaf then slice, as it can be done in this way with more evenness, and the slices will be thinner. The butter also should be soft enough to spread easily. Lay the cress thickly on one buttered slice, cover with the other and press together.

A man is generally up against it when he has to select a gift for "her." As first aid to the perplexed we have come to give this matter very serious consideration. We've made a special study of the things a woman wants but for many reasons never buys for herself. We've studiously avoided the truly useful things—she always has those. Our buyers have passed through Chicago on to New York and through the great cities of Europe, and here and there picked up novelties that will delight Miladi. The man in quest of a gift will find the unusual, the acceptable thing here.

TENTING ON THE OLD CAMP GROUND

Tenting tonight on the old camp ground,
Give us a song to cheer
Our weary hearts a song of home,
Of friends we love so dear.

Many are the hearts that are weary tonight,
Wishing for the war to cease,
Many are the hearts looking for the right,
To see the dawn of peace
Tenting tonight, tenting tonight,
Tenting on the old camp ground.

Tenting tonight on the old camp ground,
Thinking of days gone by;
The loved ones at home that gave us the hand,
And the tear that said good-by.

Weary of the war on the old camp ground,
Many are dead and gone,
Of the brave and true that left their homes,
Others been wounded long.

We've been fighting today on the old camp ground,
Many are lying near,
Some are dead, and some are dying,
Many are in tears.

Many are the hearts that are weary tonight,
Wishing for the war to cease;
Many are the hearts looking for the right,
To see the dawn of peace.
Dying tonight, dying tonight
Dying on the old camp ground.

SACRIFICES HEALTH TO PERFECT HIS ART

Violin Maker, After Quarter Century of Labor, Finds Old Italians' Secret.

Julius D. Horvath of 1622 Pine street, after having spent 25 years and thousands of dollars in making experiments, believes that at last he has discovered the great secret once known to the Italians of making a vegetable filler for violins that will render the old-time delightful tones.

He was seen yesterday in his studio, surrounded by the many and varied instruments of his trade of violin making, and was induced to talk about his discovery. He said that every violinist knew that the secret of the tone of the instrument lay in the nature of the substance called the "filler," an oily fluid which is used to fill up the pores of the soft wood of which violins are made.

The old Italians knew the secret of making a filler which had the quality of rendering the soft, rich tones which characterize the instruments of that period, but the secret and it was a profound secret, he said—died with the discoverers. He has labored 25 years to reclaim the lost art.

Strangely enough, Horvath says he never took a violin lesson in his life. He was born in Budapest and as early in life as 19 he became interested in violin making. He traveled all over France, Italy and Germany, visiting the various manufacturers to learn what they had to impart of the art which he proposed to make a life study.

Happy Now He Has Secret.

By way of describing the virtue of the filler which he has discovered, he said that a violin was composed of 42 different parts each of a separate and distinct piece of wood. Each piece of wood, he said, had a different character, and these various characters must be harmonized and rendered uniform. This is what the filler does, it makes the instrument one, so to speak, in spite of its many parts.

But the filler must be of a certain quality of flexibility, and it must maintain this flexibility. It must, for instance, never become flinty and hard. Horvath said that he had spent 25 years experimenting with different vegetable gums, trying to make a filler that would give forth the soft sounds that are produced by the instruments made by the old Italians—Stradivarius, Antonius, Amatus and others.

As he talked he stood over a little gas stove in his violin shop and stirred a boiling fluid. In the pot, he explained, were seven different sorts of vegetable gums, all of which were imported from Siam.

"I have stood over these pots and stirred the fluids," he said, "until the fumes have penetrated to my stomach and caused me intense suffering, so that today I am in very poor health. And all my earnings have gone into these pots. But I am happy, because today I have the secret which I have sought so long."

Old Makers Unaware of Value of Their Instruments.

It is Horvath's opinion that Stradivarius and the other famous violin makers labored equally long and hard to obtain the secret which made their violins famous. But, he said, he did not believe that these men appreciated the true virtue of their instruments.

"We find," he said, "numerous instruments of the olden time with holes in their backs, where hooks were placed, by means of which the instruments were suspended over the shoulders, indicating that they were used by the strolling minstrels of the day. Some of these very violins today are worth from $25,000 to $100,000. Doubtless Stradivarius and the other makers of that time sold them for a couple of hundred francs."

He said that Stradivarius lived to be 90 years old, and made upward of 1,000 violins, but that it was not until within 12 years of his death that he attained the highest efficiency in violin making.

Horvath has given the name Philamona to the violins perfected by his newly discovered process, the name being a combination of the names Philadelphia and Cremona, the latter being what he termed the cradle of the old Italian makers, the birthplace of Stradivarius and other noted makers.

THE WORK OF ONE RIVER.

From the Technical World

The hardest working river, the one most thoroughly harnessed to the mill-wheels of labor in the United States probably in the world, is the Blackstone. It is not a large river, either. Its drainage area is only about 458 square miles and in its power-producing section it is only 43 miles long. A very Tom Thumb of a river as rivers go in America. Yet the doughty little stream produces 23,000 horsepower, 50 for every square mile of its drainage area. If you will figure out [illegible] amount of horsepower in terms of coal you will find that the busy little stream represents a capitalization of about $25,000,000. This is twice the developed horsepower of any other important river.

Almost a hundred miles, catching with their whirling turbines its water almost from the very source in the city of Worcester, Mass., line its banks and grow in, size and importance till in Woonsocket and Pawtucket, Rhode Island, you have some of the largest of their kind in the country.

A PARAGRAPH OF PESSIMISM.

John Burroughs, "Leaf and Tendril."

One cannot but reflect what a sucked orange the earth will be in the course of a few more centuries. Our civilization is terribly expensive to all its natural resources: one hundred years of modern life doubtless exhausts its stores more than a millennium of the life of antiquity. Its coal and oil will be about used up, all its mineral wealth greatly depleted, the fertility of its soil will have been washed into the sea through the drainage of its cities, its wild game will be [illegible] extinct, its primitive [illegible] soon how nearly it will b[illegible]

OBITUARY

There fell asleep at the home of her daughter, Mrs C. S. Bybee, 229 E. Uintah street, August 11, 1909, Mrs. Susan Stevenson in the 86th year of her age Mrs Stevenson was born in Shippensburg, Pa., where survivors of the war of the revolution were a familiar sight about the streets. Here she grew up. After her marriage she lived in Illinois and in Nebraska till eleven years ago, when she came to live with her daughter in Colorado Springs. She was at the time of her death a member of the First Congregational church of this city.

Mrs Stevenson's character and personality were so simple, sweet and winning that the occasion should not be passed without a reference in the public print to her virtues. In her life at home as a child she was most obedient, thoughtful, sympathetic and unselfish. As a young woman in society there was an utter absence of jealousy, selfishness or intolerance. On the contrary she was governed by charity, tolerance and helpfulness As a wife she was self-forgetful: she lost herself to find it in the happiness and peace of her family. It was always her aim to live near the church of her choice; in order that, in spite of the distractions and care of home life, she might serve the interests of the kingdom of God. She was by inheritance, by nature and by choice a Christian She belonged to the race of God: she instinctively did the right thing and was always open to the influence of every high source. Being in God's world she could not but serve him, and being of the church she was one of those upon whom the church thrives She was one of whom all could be sure Her patience, faith and cheerfulness during her last illness were characteristic of all her previous life Mrs Stevenson strikingly taught all who knew her, how to be child at home, a young woman in society, how to be a wife and mother a church member, a Christian, how to bear the burdens of life; how to grow old, in that how to live and how to die.

Public funeral services were held at the home of Mrs Bybee Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, conducted by their former pastor Rev. M. D Ormes. The choir of the First Congregational church rendered two beautiful hymns. The interment was in Evergreen cemetery Of the seven children born to Mrs. Stevenson four were able to get to their mother's bedside in time to witness her translation They will carry away with them memories of a most beautiful mother, and though uncanonized one of the saints of God on earth

"ONE BIG THING IN LIFE OUTSIDE THEATER."

Henrietta Crosman, Prominent Actress, Airs Her Views Freely on Subject.

Miss Henrietta Crosman, the comedienne who appears at the Opera House this evening in "Sham," spent yesterday in this city In the afternoon, she visited the Garden of the Gods, accompanied by her husband, Maurice Campbell, who is a leading figure in New York theatrical circles. So interested was the star in the wonderful formations of nature, that she got out of the carriage and spent two hours walking around among the various rocks, seing many points that the average tourist never dreams of. Today she will go over the High Drive and also see the Seven Falls in South Cheyenne canon.

When seen last night, Miss Crosman was tired after the long drive. Her past week in Denver was a strenuous one, as she was the guest at many social functions given in her honor It was in Denver that Miss Crosman made her first real start in the theatrical world, of which she is now such a shining light.

Miss Crosman is enthusiastic over woman suffrage She never misses an opportunity to air her views on that theme. When asked if she would go to the extreme to which Mary Shaw, another prominent actress suffragette did, in producing a play on woman suffrage, she smiled that bewitching Crosman smile, which has made her famous, and said:

"I do not know. Woman suffrage is the one big thing in my life outside the theater. If the right play could be found, which would deal with the subject in a sane and sensible manner, I do not think I would hesitate as long as my husband would back me," and the way her husband looked at his charming wife at that moment, left little doubt that he would not deny her anything she wanted, could he give it to her.

When told of the Colorado suffrage movement, and asked what she thought about the result in this state, she said.

"Of course, I have for a long time known of Colorado's move in this matter, and I heartily indorse it The west is far ahead of the east in this, as in other respects. The west is free from traditions, which unhappily hamper the east. It is a great and glorious country, and I love it."

"But what has suffrage done for the west?" she was asked; "the women usually vote as their husbands tell them to."

"That is a great mistake," answered Miss Crosman; "there may be cases where women vote as their husbands advise, but this is gradually dying out. The woman is beginning to feel her responsibility in public affairs, as well as in private life. It is the woman who can do a great deal towards cleansing politics. I have no respect, however, for the woman who thinks that in order to do this she must neglect her home life. Her home is and always should be her first and greatest interest, but every woman should be able to find some time to devote to the outside world. However, politics is not the only thing we suffragettes advocate. Suffrage means the emancipation of woman. We of today are far in advance of the old Roman days of woman slavery, but there is still much to be accomplished."

Barnett Has Not Taken Brown Palace Hotel, Although Negotiations Are On.

Dr. D. H. Rice of this city, a trustee of the Stratton estate, yesterday denied a report from New York to the effect that E. Barnett, proprietor of the Park Avenue hotel of that city, and manager of the old Antlers hotel in Colorado Springs, has taken a 20-year lease on the Brown Palace hotel in Denver, owned by the Stratton estate. Dr. Rice said that no lease has been granted, but it is understood that negotiations are on between Barnett and the trustees for a 20-year lease on the Denver property.

SPRINGS MAN IN BIG MINING DEAL

J. H. HOBBS PART OWNER ARIZONA PROPERTY.

Together With John Hays Hammond, Controls the Tom Reed, Worth $2,000,000.

One of the biggest mining deals in recent years was consummated last week, when John H. Hobbs, a well-known Colorado Springs mining man, and John Hays Hammond, the eminent mining engineer, became the principal owners of the Tom Reed property, valued at $2,000,000, in the "gold road country," 29 miles north of Kingman, Ariz.

The acquisition of this property by the two prominent mining men has put an end to the litigation which has hampered operations for some time. Several years ago the Blue Ridge company, which controlled the mine, became insolvent and the property was sold at sheriff's sale for an indebtedness of $40,000. Some of the members of the company bought in the mine and organized the Tom Reed Mining company. In a few months they had opened a large body of valuable ore. Then the men who had refused to pay the assessment to save the property from being sold under the hammer, registered an objection, charging fraud, and brought suit in the district court of Phoenix, Ariz., to have the sale set aside.

It was here that Hobbs stepped in and saved the mine from going to ruin through litigation.

"I realized it was one of the prettiest little properties in the country, and as I had experience in mine litigation before, I became interested," explained Mr. Hobbs.

On the strength of Mr. Hobbs' statements, Mr. Hammond examined the mine, with the result that the two men secured a controlling interest in the property. After a conference with the Tom Reed people, Messrs. Hammond and Hobbs bought out the Blue Ridge stockholders and exchanged their investment for stock in the Tom Reed company. The deal was consummated last week and former Governor Charles S. Thomas, counsel for the Blue Ridge people, had the suit dismissed

Last year, the mine produced $350,000, but with a 100-ton mill, which has just been completed at an expenditure of $100,000, it is expected that the output will be doubled in the next 12 months.

The main working shaft of the mine is down to a depth of 350 feet, with levels opened and drifts extended on the ore on the 150, 250 and 350-foot levels. The vein varies in width from 10 to 20 feet, and there is eight feet of ore of a good milling grade.

"I'd Rather Die, Doctor,

than have my feet cut off," said M. L. Bingham, of Princeville, Ill. "But you'll die from gangrene (which had eaten away eight toes) if you don't," said all doctors. Instead—he used Bucklen's Arnica Salve till wholly cured. Its cures of Eczema, Fever Sores, Boils, Burns and Piles astound the world. 25c at all druggists.

What the Press Agents Say

TWO DAYS OF VAUDEVILLE

It is really surprising the great amount of talk that has been created in this city during the past few days, over Manager Nye's bringing real vaudeville to this city for two days, three performances daily, commencing tomorrow afternoon. It is quite evident that Colorado Springs people want to see some vaudeville acts that are offered in other cities.

The performances are strictly high class, six acts in the bill. They are all with one exception, off the Orpheum circuit, and this one exception is Carrie McManus, the sweet-voiced singer who was so popular in this city during her former appearances here. For this reason Manager Nye has brought her back for these two days and she will positively appear at every performance with new songs.

The performances will be given at the regular vaudeville prices, regardless of the expense of bringing such acts here for but two days. The matinees are 10 cents for children and 20 cents for adults in any part of the house. These matinees will commence at 3 o'clock sharp. The evening performances are as follows: First show at 7.45, prices 10c, 20c and 30 cents, no higher, with reserved seats at each price; second show at 9.15; prices 10c and 20 cents only.

The bill is headed by Hennings, Lewis and Hennings, comedians extraordinary, one of the best acts on the Orpheum circuit. This is followed by four other big acts, including Harry Adler, last week at the Orpheum, Denver, Polly Moran, singing comedienne, Espe, Leonard and Louie, hand balancers, direct from Europe, and Morgan and McGarry, singers and dancers.

MRS LESLIE CARTER AND CLOTHES

"Ninety-nine per cent of American women clothe themselves modestly and are modest in their demeanor at all times," says Mrs Leslie Carter, who will be seen at the Opera House Friday evening in her new play, "Vasta Herne."

"They strive for subdued effects, whereas designers abroad seek to startle Every gown of recent years that has caused comment, originated on foreign soil I am an American woman, although I have spent years on the other side of the Atlantic, and it is to me the keenest delight to note the modesty of our women in dress. Recently, that vulgar output of designers, the sheath gown, came in for attention, but any woman who wore on the street was striving for effect instead of to appear in good taste This gown was ignored just as a certain authoress, who wrote an unspeakable book, was snubbed at the Waldorf-Astoria, at the meeting of a distinguished women's society."

The appropriateness of the color-scheme of Mrs Carter's house gowns in "Vasta Herne," the new modern period play by Edward Peple, in which she will be seen here next Friday night, to the general setting, is the delight of artists and modistes.

HENRIETTA CROSMAN TONIGHT

Do you remember that little trick of Henrietta Crosman's voice that gives such piquant flavor to some of her comedy lines? It occurs generally in her upper register, and the bit of inflection has been called "charming" and fascinating" by critics and friends Playgoers may well be thankful for this slight peculiarity in tone, for were it not for that the present generation might not have enjoyed the acting of the most delightful comedienne on the stage.

Miss Crosman, at a very early age, was studying for grand opera. Her voice promised to make of her one of the great prima donnas of the day. She studied at home, and then went to Paris But the girl's ambition carried her beyond the strength of her tender years and one day, while taking a very high tone, her master noticed a little break in the voice the penalty of demanding too much of the vocal cords. Throat specialists were visited, but the little break in the upper register always remained, and the young singer knew that her ambition to be a great prima donna would never be realized. That is why Miss Crosman is now one of the brightest luminaries of the dramatic stage instead of a singer in grand opera. But when this charming comedienne receives notes from silly matinee girls or foolish youths in which they refer to her "fascinating" little trick in moment's of anger or emotion, she only smiles that smile of one who has fought the battle of life and, by pluck and courage, has overcome the difficulties on the road to success

Miss Crosman has scored the success of her career in "Sham," in which she delighted New York and Chicago and which she will present at the Opera House tonight only Some good seats are still left at these prices, 50c, $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00

GRAND OPERA COMING

One of the most important theatrical events of the season is the forthcoming engagement of the International Grand Opera company, which has been secured by Manager Nye to present grand opera to his patrons on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, next week.

The International Grand Opera company is declared to be one of the largest organizations in the world, numbering 100 principals chorus and their superb orchestra, and carries productions complete in every detail Among the members of this remarkable organization of world fame are Mme Therry, Mme Norelli Mlle Strauss Mme Zazad Mlle Donnet Mlle Batt Columbini Signor Arcangeli Zoli Cervi Giuliano Fracona, Oteri Kaplin and others

This company comes direct from their engagements in the larger western cities and have been playing an extra session of six weeks in San Francisco where they made a most phenomenal hit Complete scenic production for each opera is carried by the management and the costumes are new and historically correct The repertoire of this company comprises all the standard and several new ones 'Carmen," "Lucia," "Aida," "Faust," "Il Trovatore," "La Traviata," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Pagliacci," "Fedora" "L'Amico Fritz" "Ernani" and others The operas that are to be presented here will be announced later

The San Francisco Examiner says the following:

Igo Colombini, the dramatic tenor, is the surprise of the year Of course, we expected him to sing up to his reputation, but he turned out to be a great deal more than a good singer He is peculiarly magnetic and he is a remarkably good actor and is the sensation of the company, and before the season is over all the state will want to hear him

Hardly second in the operatic interest of the evening at the Princess but for the fact that a truly great operatic tenor is about the rarest thing we may discover Madame Helene Therry, the dramatic soprano of the company, was the other surprise She is a young singer, with eight years of experience in her native France, England and this country

Like Colombini she acts as well as she sings She was an ideal Fedora. Her voice and that of the tenor blended beautifully and the gorgeous vocal effects, with the excellent acting and the strong magnetic control exerted by both, made these principals a pair always to be remembered.

The support was all good, Arcangeli winning new distinction Merola and his orchestra would have delighted Giordano himself had he been present.

NEW MAJESTIC BILL IS OUT OF THE ORDINARY

This week's bill at the popular Majestic, which is ushered in at the matinee this afternoon, is as much out of the ordinary as was that of last week, but in a somewhat different way It is "different" so to speak but different in a way that guarantees popularity similar to that of the bill which at every performance for the last six week has filled the house to the last

EDDIE GIRARD AND JESSIE GARDNER.
In "Dooley and the Diamond" at the Majestic This Week.

One of the distinctive features, an absolute novelty in vaudeville, too, although acts along similar lines have both presented, is the posing of the group of artists traveling as the Stanley-Edwards Co. Their act has been praised everywhere, not only as an aesthetic delight but as an artistic education With absolute fidelity of conception and a degree of skill in execution possible only after years of training, the four members of this troupe, two young men and two young women, reproduce the most famous statuary and paintings, ancient and modern, in a manner so true to the originals that one, having seen them, need not go to the world's great art galleries to say that he has seen the classics.

One of the most wonderful pieces of sculpture ever made by man, that ancient Greek masterpiece known as "The Discus Thrower," is among the classic works of art reproduced, and the marvelous skill of the artists of this company is shown by the fact that the Apollo-like youth posing in it holds a difficult position for fully two minutes without the slightest tremor of a muscle that would destroy the impression of the spectator that he is looking upon a beautiful carved marble.

Of especial interest in connection with the appearance of this company is the fact that its members are students at the Chicago Art Institute and are touring the country in vaudeville for the purpose of raising additional funds to pursue their art education there and under foreign masters.

Variety is the spice of life, but just as truly it is the spice of a vaudeville entertainment, and the Majestic bill this week affords it. In the way of musical entertainment there will be violin selections by Defrej, a gypsy violinist from Venice, Italy, who is described by those who have heard him as one of the greatest artists of the present day, and vocal solos by Bert Havens, who will sing "some of the songs you like to hear."

And then the laughs They are what make the appetite good and the sleep sound Eddie Girard and Jessie Gardiner are going to furnish them this week About fifteen or twenty minutes worth at every performance Not a laugh now and then, but a laugh from start to finish, one continuous roar. They not only have the reputation for being a sure cure for the blues or the grouch, but they live up to it. Eddie Girard is acknowledged as the greatest comedian in vaudeville today, and in Jessie Gardiner he has a clever and accomplished partner.

"Dooley and the Diamond" is their offering, and it is one of those classics of the comic song stage that get better with age Just a hint as to what it is like. The young lady in the case has an immensely valuable diamond which was stolen from the eye of a Hindu idol and has supernatural powers The possessor of it can change people into animals and vice versa. She is afraid it will be stolen and secures an officer to guard it The officer is Dooley—as funny a Dooley as Peter Dunne's famous character What happens in the next few minutes is a scream What happens in the following few minutes, after the young lady changes Dooley into a monkey, is a delirium of fun Suffice it to say that Mr Dooley looks the part and plays it

Finally, to round out a bill that offers entertainment of every character, there are the Wood Brothers, the famous Irish athletes, who offer one of the most sensational performances in the gymnastic line ever seen on a stage These two performers combine prodigious strength with remarkable skill and daring, and perform feats on the bars and suspended rings that fairly take the spectator's breath away. The climax of their act wins thunders of applause when the startled audience recovers from its suspense, assured that the daring trick has been performed in safety The acrobats are sure to win instant popularity

The Majestiscope will present another series of thrilling scenes on the western plains, better if anything than those which made such a hit with every audience last week. The series is entitled "The Pet of the Big Horn Ranch" and was taken from life on one of the biggest and best managed ranches of the west. It tells the story of a stolen filly and an attempted murder by rustlers, with a thrilling rescue of their intended victim by his cowboy comrades There is a happy love theme through the story and all ends well, as it should.

Some exceptionally pleasing music is on the orchestra program. That Majestic orchestra, by the way, is one of the best in the country Performers here last week pronounced it as without a peer between the coasts

Three performances daily, matinee at 3 p m, evening performances at 7 30 and 9 10 Admission, 10, 20 and 30c loges 50c.

A CALLING GOWN OF BROADCLOTH.

Cloths, especially broadcloth, are fashionable for this fall and winter. This stunning calling gown is built on the princess plan. The button trimming down each side of the gown is completed in the buttons from shoulder to elbow of the sleeves. These sleeves show the two-material style that is so popular in Paris at the present time: the top part, in this instance, is broadcloth, while the lower is of lace, braided with narrow soutache. Around the neck goes a fluting of satin, and at the waist and hanging in front is a Directoire sash.

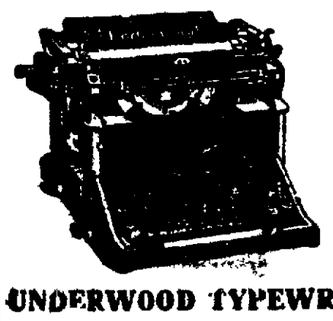
Correcting Mistakes

They will make mistakes sometimes—typewriter operators; but who won't? The important thing is to correct mistakes with the least possible loss of time.

The Underwood

The visible writing makes the error immediately apparent. Then the place for the aligning letter is shown right in line with the "V shape" notch in the type-bar guide. No calculation is necessary—the type cannot go to the wrong point.



If saving of time and increase in efficiency are worth securing in your office, then it is well worth while to obtain full knowledge of the Underwood Standard Typewriter and the superior features it possesses. If you will come in, no further draft on your time and patience will be made than you choose to permit.
